SEQUEL TO "OUR FOLKS AT HOME:"

Or, Live at YHE OLO MANOR HOME:

By Edward Bolivar. Illustrated by six fine Engraings from new drawings, handsomely printed and bound in cloth, extra. 16theo., 346 pages. Price 75 cents.

In the Sequel to "Our Folks at Home" the author has endeavored to adhere strictly to the original intention in the volume already issued, which was to keep in view utility in its highest sense. It is worth the labor of writing many books to impress upon the minds of youth that the true purpose of life is not ammented or enjoyment, or mete selfish gain, but usefulness. A life spent in maning others happy is far better than a life spent in happing up riches that period.

The success attending the first volume of Home Stortes, issued in accordance with these views, has induced the author to give UNCLE PRATT'S ECOND SELECTION OF STORIES, as related around the fireside at the Old Manor Homes for the mutual entertainment and instruction of the family during the long winter evenings. Should the readers of "Our Folks at Home" derive equal benefit and gratification from the realized.
